DESCARTES'S MEDITATIONS

In this new introduction to a classic philosophical text, Catherine Wilson examines the arguments of Descartes's famous Meditations, the book which launched modern philosophy. Drawing on the reinterpretations of Descartes's thought of the past twenty-five years, she shows how Descartes constructs a theory of the mind, the body, nature, and God from a premise of radical uncertainty. She discusses in detail the historical context of Descartes's writings, and their relationship to early modern science, and at the same time she introduces concepts and problems that define the philosophical enterprise as it is understood today. Following closely the text of the Meditations and meant to be read alongside them, this survey is accessible to readers with no previous background in philosophy. It is well suited to university-level courses on Descartes, but can also be read with profit by students in other disciplines.

CATHERINE WILSON is Professor of Philosophy at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver. She is the author of Leibniz's Metaphysics: A Historical and Comparative Study (1989) and The Invisible World: Early Modern Philosophy and the Invention of the Microscope, 1620–1720 (1995).

CAMBRIDGE INTRODUCTIONS TO KEY
PHILOSOPHICAL TEXTS

This new series offers introductory textbooks on what are considered to be the most important texts of Western philosophy. Each book guides the reader through the main themes and arguments of the work in question, while also paying attention to its historical context and its philosophical legacy. No philosophical background knowledge is assumed, and the books will be well suited to introductory university-level courses.

Introduction: About the Meditations	I
1 The situation of the Meditator is described and his desire to demolish everything and begin again is explored, while the Reader is introduced to some basic philosophical concepts	10
1 The Meditator – The building metaphor – “Knowledge conditions” – Scientific and unscientific mentalities (AT VII:17–18)	10
2 The aims of an ideal scientist – Sorting-procedures – Belief-sets – Skepticism and credulity – Conformity and authority (AT VII:18)	21
2 Meditation One
The possibility of a malevolent Demon is raised and the Meditator resolves to doubt everything he can possibly doubt	32
1 The Withholding Policy – Can the senses be trusted? – The dream argument – The malevolent Demon argument (AT VII:18–23)	32
2 Objections to Meditation One	45
3 Meditation Two
The Meditator discovers an indubitable proposition and continues with an investigation into her ideas of herself and her ideas of corporeal things	50
1 Hyperbolic Doubt – An addition to the Meditator’s belief-set – “Cogito, sum” (AT VII:23–5)	50

2	What am “I?” – Former opinions doubted – “I” must be a mind – Seeing₁ and Seeing₂ (AT VII:25–30)	57
3	What are “corporeal things?” – Knowledge of [ideas of] corporeal things – The “piece of wax” – Extension – Intellect priority – Mind priority (AT VII:30–34)	62
4	Objections to Meditation Two	68
4	Meditation Three (I) The Meditator discovers how to distinguish true from false propositions by reference to the clarity and distinctness of his ideas and considers whether God is merely a subjective idea	78
1	Clear and distinct perception – Truth (AT VII:34–6)	78
2	Is the Deity (malevolent or benevolent) merely an idea? – Ideas and their sources – Substance, modes, accidents – Degrees of reality and degrees of perfection – Materially false ideas (AT VII:36–46)	86
3	Objections to Meditation Three (I)	94
5	Meditation Three (II) The Meditator finds that he can reach a perfect God in his thoughts and that this God cannot perpetrate fraud and deception and cannot be a Demon	97
1	Is God more than the Meditator’s invented idea? – Could the Meditator be God – ? Continuous creation (AT VII:46–51)	97
2	God is veracious – The malevolent Demon is an invented idea – The natural light – The conversion of BELIEVE to TRUE – Attaining knowledge (AT VII:51–2)	103
3	Objections to Meditation Three (II)	106
6	Meditation Four (I) The Meditator broods on her epistemological and moral errors and deficiencies and discovers the true power of her will and its spontaneous attraction to truth and goodness	120
1	True and false judgment – Divine and human will – The use of free will (AT VII:52–8)	120
7	Meditation Four (II) The Meditator diagnoses the cause of her epistemological and moral errors, adds an
